Rachel joined the Education team as a SEN specialist, helping children and young people to secure the education that meet their needs. An area of law she is passionate about working in.

She has experience in assisting parents with EHC needs assessment, drafting EHC Plans and in creating the casework needed for tribunal appeals.

Rachel is an associate member of CILEx and is a member of the Education Law Association.

Her interest in SEN law was sparked by caring for her own child. After graduating she worked with a national SEND advice charity giving legally-based information and support to parents and carers, then set up as an independent SEN law consultant.
